SHERIFF WARNS GYPSY BAND IN PICKAWAY AREA

Sheriff Charles Radcliff warned Pickaway countians Wednesday to be on the lookout for a band of gypsies who robbed a New Holland resident of his pocketbook and approximately $2 and attempted to rob a Washington township farmer Tuesday afternoon.

Three gypsy women and a man attempted to rob Eber Drum, Washington township, while he was working in his barn but found no money. Members of the sheriff's department and city police searched the neighborhood but were unable to find the gypsies.

Later, the sheriff received a call that John Hastings, New Holland had been robbed by the gypsies. The sheriff believes it was the same band that appeared in Washington township.

Sheriff Radcliff urged farmers to obtain good descriptions of gypsies and licenses of their cars. "Pick up a rock if they come too close," the sheriff said.

AUTO OPERATORS ARE WARNED OF SLIPPERY ROADS

Rain and warmer weather, Thursday, were scheduled to follow Circleville's second snow storm of the season.

The snowfall Tuesday night and Wednesday morning amounted to two and a half inches, Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weatherman, reported. .06 of an inch of rain preceded the snow. The snow when melted amounted to .41 of an inch. Tuesday's highest temperature was 40 degrees and the lowest during the night, 32.

Six trucks of the state highway department started out with snow scrapers to clear highways at 3:30 a. m. Wednesday. Workers reported the roads were slippery, and warned autoists to drive carefully.

CABBIE WOUNDS KENTUCKIAN, 30, AFTER HOLD-UP

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — (UP) — James Carpenter, 26, cab driver, shot and wounded a man who gave his name as James Swisher, 30, of Kentucky, after Swisher forced him to drive into an alley by pressing a fountain pen against his neck and robbed him of $2.60. Carpenter fired when Swisher tried to flee in an alley.

2-hour Law Offenders Lectured

No fines were imposed Tuesday on violators of the two-hour parking regulation, Mayor W. J. Graham reported, but all who reported were warned they would be assessed on their second trip. The mayor said he considered it unfair to fine motorists until all had been warned about the regulation.

"The majority who have come before me are country people," the mayor explained. "I conferred with councilmen to learn their opinions."

"I intend to consider each case and use my best judgment. One man was in a dentist's chair when his car was tagged."

Twenty-nine tags were issued Monday, the first day the regulation was enforced, and 15 were reported Tuesday.

37 INDICTED AS CAMBRIDGE HITS NUMBERS, SLOTS

CAMBRIDGE, Dec. 2 — (UP) — The "cleanup" of gambling operations here resulted today in secret indictment of 37 operators of marble games and various vending machines.

Sheriff Harry Totten presented photographs of the gambling devices to the grand jury. Recently, six were arrested here in a campaign against number racket operators.

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR HOME PORT AFTER ADDRESS

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 2 — (UP) — President Roosevelt takes leave today of his three-day Argentine host, President P. Justo, with the expectation that they will next meet in Washington.

With the plaudits of the 21 American republics still resounding as they rallied to his call for peace at the inter-American conference which he opened, the President boarded the cruiser Indianapolis for a trip across the river Plata to Montevideo, Uruguay.

He will arrive there tomorrow morning for a six-hour official call on President Terra before beginning his 7,000-mile voyage home.

While his itinerary was not complete, it was thought the Indianapolis would proceed straight to Mobile, Alabama, instead of to Port of Spain, Trinidad, as was originally contemplated. This was because Mr. Roosevelt wished to take the body of his personal bodyguard and friend, August "Gus" Gennerich, who died yesterday of a heart attack, as directly as possible to Warm Springs, Ga., for burial.

The Cedarville man offered to grade, drain and surface 3.259 miles of the road for $18,504. The highway to be repaired is known as the Palestine-Williamsport road.

24 Raiders Drop Bombs on Beleaguered Capital in Midst of Great Fight

HATRED MORE INTENSE

Women, Children Remain in City Despite Dangers

MADRID, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Forty-four insurgent war planes roared over this beleaguered capital today and poured death from the skies on the scurrying civilian population in the midst of the greatest battle of the civil war.

Nine silver and black three-motored bombers and 15 silver fighters dropped approximately 30 bombs around University city, where loyalist and nationalist troops are locked in combat.

Women, Children Flee
The buildings of Madrid trembled. Women and children—staying by their menfolk in common hatred of the invader and refusing to take refuge on the coast—fled into bomb-proof shelters, subways, cellars and doorways when the first bomb rattled the city's windows.

The formidable enemy fleet of death flew over in perfect formation. It was one of the greatest mass air raids of a big city in the history of warfare.

Anti-aircraft guns popped futilely. There was no loyalist fleet ready to give battle.

Intensifies Hatred

The raid, designed more to terrorize the populace than for its military effectiveness, served only to intensify the hatred seething in the capital.

This hatred was enhanced earlier by charges that the nationalists, desperate, were using gas in their attack to offset the sudden change in the course of the war brought about by a resurgence of loyalist resistance.

The loyalists, fortified by strong foreign aid, have turned from being cornered fugitives into a force on the full offensive.

UBILE AND KALB CLAIM LEAD FOR HOUSE POSITION

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Leadership of the house of representatives in the 1937-1938 Ohio legislature was to be decided today at an organization caucus of the 105 Democratic members-elect.

The contest for the speakership has narrowed to Rep. Frank R. Uible, Cleveland, Democratic floor leader of the present house, and Rep. Al Kaib, Port Clinton.

Uible is a lawyer and was chosen for his third term in the house. Kaib, a fruit buyer and farmer, also is to begin his third term. Both have supported the Davey administration.

Gov. Martin L. Davey has stated publicly that he would play no part in organization of the house.

Kaib predicted he would receive 50 votes in the caucus. Those interested in Uible said he would receive about 80 votes. Fifty-three votes are necessary to elect.

The contest for the position of majority floor leader, or speaker pro tem, will depend upon the result of the contest for the speakership. Candidates for floor leader include Rep. Jacob E. Davis, Pike county; Rep. Lody Huml, Cuyahoga county, and Rep. Richard Marlow, Lucas county.

Fred P. Elsas, of Anna, O., clerk in the present house, was slated for re-election. The caucus also will name a half dozen assistant clerks, sergeants-at-arms and other subordinate jobs.

County to Receive $47,580 Under Last Distribution of Fiscal Year

Pickaway county was scheduled to receive $47,580 in Wednesday's distribution of school foundation money.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — (UP) — The state school foundation program today rounded out its first year of operation by paying $11,582,355 to school districts, making a total of $48,217,000 for the year, and leaving a deficit of approximately $6,500,000 to be provided for by the incoming general assembly.

Dr. D. H. Sutton, financial advisor of the education department, said today's distribution, all of which was in cash, was for October, November and December.

Some Funds Short

He said the deficit was due to failure of tax sources earmarked for the foundation program to produce the anticipated funds when the program was drafted by the legislature.

The deficit represents approximately one-half of the total amount in notes issued to school districts in the first two quarters of the year, and which totaled $12,000,000.

To Cut Deficit

Dr. Sutton said funds now accruing and which would be collected during the weeks before the end of the month would approach $6,000,000 mark and would enable the department to retire that amount to leave a deficit of about $6,500,000.

The distribution today was made to county, exempted, village and city school districts.

GARNER BACKING OF TEXAN ADDS TO HOUSE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Vice President John N. Garner's espousal of Rep. Sam Rayburn, Texas, for the house majority leadership threatened today to disorganize White House legislative plans.

It threw a bombshell into the veteran Texas representative and Rep. John J. O'Connor, New York, chairman of the house rules committee and acting Democratic leader late in the last congress.

Repercussions virtually are certain to be heard on the house floor when Congress convenes Jan. 5. Both Rayburn and O'Connor have been campaigning actively for the post since the death last session of Rep. Joseph Byrns, elevated Majority Leader William B. Bankhead, Alabama, to the speakership.

Governor Arrested

CHARGED with concealing an employee's alleged thefts from the bank he headed at Rutland, Vt., Gov. Charles M. Smith of Vermont, above, was arrested and later freed when $6,000 bail was furnished. Governor Smith, 68, was specifically charged with misprision of felony, a charge brought under an old common law in Vermont. According to State's Attorney Asa S. Bloomer, the governor's arrest grew out of a bookkeeper's alleged thefts amounting to more than a quarter-million dollars. The bookkeeper, John J. Cocklin, 42, was convicted a week ago of embezzling $124,000 from the bank over a nine-year period. Gov. Smith, whose term is expiring, did not run for re-election.

Some Funds Short
He said the deficit was due to failure of tax sources earmarked for the foundation program to produce the anticipated funds when the program was drafted by the legislature.

The deficit represents approximately one-half of the total amount in notes issued to school districts in the first two quarters of the year, and which totaled $12,000,000.

BRUNGS CHARGED WITH THEFT AS TRIAL IS OPENED

Fred Brungs, who was returned to the Mansfield reformatory for violation of a parole following his arrest in the investigation of the theft of chickens from H. E. Riggin's poultry house, Aug. 28, was brought to Circleville Wednesday to testify in the trial of his brother, Clarence, in common pleas court.

Both brothers were indicted on two counts of burglary and larceny in the theft of 62 pounds of chickens and groceries valued at $18.40 from George Linebaugh's store.

Because of scaffolding in the common pleas court room the trial is being conducted in the law library. Jurors are Helen Hedges, Harrison township; Peter Foland and Ralph Harmont, Deercreek township; Paul Bougher, Muhlenberg township; Ray Plum, and Mable Noggle, Walnut township; Ethel Fee, Jackson township; Emmett Lutz, Pearl D. Armstrong, and F. L. Minshall, Salt Creek township; Jane Sweetman, city, and Edna Hanawalt, Monroe township.

Purpose Exposed

It was learned that an editorial in today's Times, referring to the possibility that children of the Duke of York, the king's brother and heir presumptive, might reign was written with deliberate purpose.

Present indications are that the method of solution of the crisis will depend largely on the state of public opinion.

Conservative provincial newspapers, aiming to bring the matter into the open, deliberately broke away today from the self-imposed censorship on which London newspapers had agreed among themselves.

Their editorials did not mention Mrs. Simpson or the king's friendship for her. They merely warned the king that he is a sovereign born to rule and that it is necessary for him to set an example of the highest sort of self sacrifice and service to his country.

But there were signs that the whole matter might break into the open in the newspapers soon, for it was learned that provincial newspapers this morning began to ask London news-picture agencies for pictures of Mrs. Simpson. Hitherto the provincial papers have published no pictures of her. London papers have published only a few of the less intimate pictures taken on the king's summer cruise with her as a member of his party.

Both suffered brain concussions and multiple face lacerations, abrasions and contusions. They were still semi-conscious three hours later.

It was the second serious injury suffered by Dobie in his brief service at Boston college. His collarbone was broken in scrimmage during spring practice.

CABINET MEETS WITH BALDWIN READY TO QUIT

Friendship of King Edward and Mrs. Simpson Brings Dangerous Dispute

LEGAL ADVISORS CALLED

Ruler's Abdication Believed Possible in London

LONDON, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Great Britain was plunged into one of the gravest constitutional crises of its history today over the friendship of King Edward for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

It was learned on absolutely trustworthy authority that the result may be the king's abdication or the resignation of the cabinet.

The cabinet has "notified" the king, or in technical phrase "advised his majesty," not to marry Mrs. Simpson.

The king thus far has refused to accept the cabinet's advice.

As the cabinet met at No. 10 Downing street — whether to take up the situation of the king was not known — his majesty's legal adviser was summoned to Buckingham palace.

Advisors Called

The king's private secretary, Maj. Alexander Hardinge, hastily summoned the attorney general of the Duchy of Cornwall, who represents the king in legal matters. The king was at Fort Belvedere and was expected to hurry back to London.

It was believed that because of the pressure of affairs, including the Spanish problem, another special meeting would be called to discuss and decide the constitutional crisis.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has threatened, unless the king promises to accept the cabinet's "advice," to rush through parliament making it compulsory for any sovereign to obtain the approval of the privy council for his marriage.

The king has counter-threatened to refuse to approve any such bill.

The constitutional question is a most thorny one, because of the probable difficulty of forming another cabinet in the event that Baldwin resigned.

This hatred was enhanced earlier by charges that the nationalists, desperate, were using gas in their attack to offset the sudden change in the course of the war brought about by a resurgence of loyalist resistance.

The loyalists, fortified by strong foreign aid, have turned from being cornered fugitives into a force on the full offensive.

UIBLE AND KALB CLAIM LEAD FOR HOUSE POSITION

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Leadership of the house of representatives in the 1937-1938 Ohio legislature was to be decided today at an organization caucus of the 105 Democratic members-elect.

The contest for the speakership has narrowed to Rep. Frank R. Uible, Cleveland, Democratic floor leader of the present house, and Rep. Al Kalb, Port Clinton.

Uible is a lawyer and was chosen for his third term in the house. Kalb, a fruit buyer and farmer, also is to begin his third term. Both have supported the Davey administration.

Gov. Martin L. Davey has stated publicly that he would play no part in organization of the house. Kalb predicted he would receive 50 votes in the caucus. Those interested in Uible said he would receive about 80 votes. Fifty-three votes are necessary to elect.

The contest for the position of majority floor leader, or speaker pro tem, will depend upon the result of the contest for the speakership. Candidates for floor leader include Rep. Jacob E. Davis, Pike county; Rep. Lody Huml, Cuyahoga county, and Rep. Richard Marlow, Lucas county.

Ohio School Program Completes First Year

DATES SET FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS' HOLIDAY REST

The Christmas date recommended for the county schools has been established from Thursday afternoon, Dec. 24 to Monday, Jan. 4, George McDowell, county superintendent, said Wednesday. The various boards will act on the recommendation and reports will be filed with the county office.

County to Receive $47,580 Under Last Distribution of Fiscal Year

Pickaway county was scheduled to receive $47,580 in Wednesday's distribution of school foundation money.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — (UP) — The state school foundation program today rounded out its first year of operation by paying $11,582,355 to school districts, making a total of $48,217,000 for the year, and leaving a deficit of approximately $6,500,000 to be provided for by the incoming general assembly.

Dr. D. H. Sutton, financial advisor of the education department, said today's distribution, all of which was in cash, was for October, November and December.

Some Funds Short
He said the deficit was due to failure of tax sources earmarked for the foundation program to produce the anticipated funds when the program was drafted by the legislature.

The deficit represents approximately one-half of the total amount in notes issued to school districts in the first two quarters of the year, and which totaled $12,000,000.

To Cut Deficit
Dr. Sutton said funds now accruing and which would be collected during the weeks before the end of the month would approach $6,000,000 mark and would enable the department to retire that amount to leave a deficit of about $6,500,000.

The distribution today was made to county, exempted, village and city school districts.

Governor Arrested

CHARGED with concealing an employee's alleged thefts from the bank he headed at Rutland, Vt., Gov. Charles M. Smith of Vermont, above, was arrested and later freed when $6,000 bail was furnished. Governor Smith, 68, was specifically charged with misprision of felony, a charge brought under an old common law in Vermont. According to State's Attorney Asa S. Bloomer, the governor's arrest grew out of a bookkeeper's alleged thefts amounting to more than a quarter-million dollars. The bookkeeper, John J. Cocklin, 42, was convicted a week ago of embezzling $124,000 from the bank over a nine-year period. Gov. Smith, whose term is expiring, did not run for re-election.

BRUNGS CHARGED WITH THEFT AS TRIAL IS OPENED
Fred Brungs, who was returned to the Mansfield reformatory for violation of a parole following his arrest in the investigation of the theft of chickens from H. E. Both brothers were indicted on two counts of burglary and larceny in the theft of 62 pounds of chickens and groceries valued at $18.40 from George Limebaugh's store.

Because of scaffolding in the common pleas court room the trial is being conducted in the law library. Jurors are Helen Fodges, Harrison township; Peter Hollo and Ralph Harmount, Deercreek township; Paul Bougher, Muhlenberg township; Ray Plum, and Mable Noggle, Walnut township; Ethel Fee, Jackson township; Emmett Lutz, Pearl D. Purpose Exposed
It was learned that an editorial in today's Times, referring to the possibility that children of the Duke of York, the king's brother and heir presumptive, might reign was written with deliberate purpose.

Present indications are that the method of solution of the crisis will depend largely on the state of public opinion.

Conservative provincial newspapers, aiming to bring the matter into the open, deliberately broke away today from the self-imposed censorship on which London newspapers had agreed among themselves.

Their editorials did not mention Mrs. Simpson or the king's friendship for her. They merely warned the king that he is a sovereign born to rule and that it is necessary for him to set an example of the highest sort of self sacrifice and service to his country.

But there were signs that the whole matter might break into the open in the newspapers soon, for it was learned that provincial newspapers this morning began to ask London news-picture agencies for pictures of Mrs. Simpson. Hitherto the provincial papers have published no pictures of her. London papers have published only a few of the less intimate pictures taken on the king's summer cruise with her as a member of his party.

CABINET MEETS WITH BALDWIN READY TO QUIT

Friendship of King Edward and Mrs. Simpson Brings Dangerous Dispute

LEGAL ADVISORS CALLED

Ruler's Abdication Believed Possible in London

LONDON, Dec. 2 — (UP) — Great Britain was plunged into one of the gravest constitutional crises of its history today over the friendship of King Edward for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

It was learned on absolutely trustworthy authority that the result may be the king's abdication or the resignation of the cabinet.

The cabinet has "notified" the king, or in technical phrase "advised his majesty," not to marry Mrs. Simpson.

The king thus far has refused to accept the cabinet's advice.

As the cabinet met at No. 10 Downing street — whether to take up the situation of the king was not known — his majesty's legal adviser was summoned to Buckingham palace.

Advisors Called
The king's private secretary, Maj. Alexander Hardinge, hastily summoned the attorney general of the Duchy of Cornwall, who represents the king in legal matters. The king was at Fort Belvedere and was expected to hurry back to London.

It was believed that because of the pressure of affairs, including the Spanish problem, another special meeting would be called to discuss and decide the constitutional crisis.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has threatened, unless the king promises to accept the cabinet's "advice," to rush through parliament making it compulsory for any sovereign to obtain the approval of the privy council for his marriage.

The king has counter-threatened to refuse to approve any such bill. The constitutional question is a most thorny one, because of the probable difficulty of forming another cabinet in the event that Baldwin resigned.

FEDERAL FUNDS TO AID OHIO'S NEEDY CHILDREN

Marked Progress Shown in Last Few Months of Social Program

ROBISON STATE CHIEF

Best Care Guaranteed For 30,000 Dependents

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2 — With federal funds now available to aid Ohio's 30,000 dependent children receiving assistance under the Social Security Act, Judge Henry J. Robison, chief of the State Division of Public Assistance, declared that "marked progress" could be expected during the next few months in the children's program.

Judge Robison revealed that federal funds totaling $155,147 were recently sent into Ohio counties as reimbursements to the counties for money expended by them for dependent children from July 21 to September 30 of the last fiscal quarter.

The funds which were the national government's first allocation to Ohio's dependent children, also represented the federal government's one-third share of the total program cost during that period.

$264,000 in Two Months

Besides the federal funds, for the last several months the State has been allocating regular monthly grants to the counties for aid to dependent children. For October and November, the State grants to counties totaled $264,000.

"The availability of federal funds to supplement state and county funds undoubtedly will speed up the program to a great extent in many counties," Judge Robison said.

"Previously, many counties in the state were delayed in getting the program started since they did not have sufficient funds to assure dependent children adequate care and treatment," he added.

Every effort is being made by the Division of Public Assistance to insure dependent children, who have a responsibility but needy parent or relative, the best possible care. This is being accomplished by providing for their minimum needs and keeping the children with their kin.

Remember When?

March 1, 1923, House of Representatives passed Senator Chappell's state aid for roads bill.

The assembly approved the bill of C. C. Chappell, Pickaway county solon, which allowed the state to assist Ohio counties to the extent of 50 per cent or less of the cost of building bridges in municipalities or on main market or inter-county roads. The vote was 88 to 6.

The same measure was passed two years ago, but was vetoed by Governor Harry Davis.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A stirring indictment of the hooded legions that once more have been menacing American ideals, is found in Columbia's "Legion of Terror", which opens tonight at the Cliftona theatre. Bruce Cabot, Marguerite Churchill and a newcomer named Crawford Weaver enact the film's more prominent roles, and aid immeasurably in making it a thrill-filled, well-acted affair.

The story deals with two newly-appointed Postal Inspectors who set out to track down the sender of a time-bomb to a United States senator, and run across a hooded organization that is terrorizing an American city. They meet a straight-forward young fellow who is loud in his condemnation of the legion, and his sister, who fears for his life.

Mary Astor's new feature, "Lady From Nowhere" completes the double bill.

AT THE GRAND

Henry Armetta has no delusions of grandeur or obsessions of omnipotence. A Hollywood wag jokingly called Armetta "Henry the Magnificent" because the screen comedian had appeared in important roles in "The Magnificent Brute" and "Magnificent Obsession."

Armetta's reply to the daily was, "No, I'm just plain Henry. The people who like my work on the screen feel friendly toward me because I am a simple fellow. If I start getting the idea that I am 'magnificent' or 'terrific' or 'colossal' it will show in my acting on the screen. Then the public will say, 'Swelled head.' That would be the finish. And not so magnificent."

Armetta has an important role in University's "The Magnificent Brute," starring Victor McLaglen, now at the Grand theatre.

AT THE CIRCLE

Jack Benny converted his pre-radio broadcast idea into a picture idea for the start of his new starring comedy-drama, "It's in the Air," to be seen tonight at the Circle theatre.

Before a camera was turned, Benny, Nat Pendleton, Ted Healy, Mary Carlisle and Una Merkel joked with the crew and the additional players, so everyone would be in the proper mood for filming a comedy.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy-drama, directed by Charles F. Riesner, shows the radio, stage and screen comedian in the role of a Broadway "chigler," who becomes a national hero instead of a "number" when he makes a world record for altitude in a stratosphere balloon.

Una Merkel, portraying Benny's wife, enacts a dramatic role for the first time in her screen career. Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Mary Carlisle and Grant Mitchell are also in the cast.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A stirring indictment of the hooded legions that once more have been menacing American ideals, is found in Columbia's "Legion of Terror", which opens tonight at the Cliftona theatre. Bruce Cabot, Marguerite Churchill and a newcomer named Crawford Weaver enact the film's more prominent roles, and aid immeasurably in making it a thrill-filled, well-acted affair.

The story deals with two newly-appointed Postal Inspectors who set out to track down the sender of a time-bomb to a United States senator, and run across a hooded organization that is terrorizing an American city. They meet a straight-forward young fellow who is loud in his condemnation of the legion, and his sister, who fears for his life.

Mary Astor's new feature, "Lady From Nowhere" completes the double bill.

AT THE GRAND

Henry Armetta has no delusions of grandeur or obsessions of omnipotence. A Hollywood was jokingly called Armetta "Henry the Magnificent" because the screen comedian had appeared in important roles in "The Magnificent Brute" and "Magnificent Obsession."

Armetta's reply to the sally was, "No, I'm just plain Henry. The people who like my work on the screen feel friendly toward me because I am a simple fellow. If I start getting the idea that I am 'magnificent' or 'terrific' or 'colossal' it will show in my acting on the screen. Then the public will say, 'Swelled head.' That would be the finish. And not so magnificent."

Armetta has an important role in University's "The Magnificent Brute," starring Victor McLaglen, now at the Grand theatre.

AT THE CIRCLE

Jack Benny converted his pre-radio broadcast idea into a picture idea for the start of his new starring comedy-drama, "It's in the Air," to be seen tonight at the Circle theatre.

Before a camera was turned, Benny, Nat Pendleton, Ted Healy, Mary Carlisle and Una Merkel joked with the crew and the additional players, so everyone would be in the proper mood for filming a comedy.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy-drama, directed by Charles F. Riesner, shows the radio, stage and screen comedian in the role of a Broadway "chiseler," who becomes a national hero instead of a "number" when he makes a world record for altitude in a stratosphere balloon.

Una Merkel, portraying Benny's wife, enacts a dramatic role for the first time in her screen career. Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Mary Carlisle and Grant Mitchell are also in the cast.

HERE'S the latest portrait of Singin' Sam, whose familiar chuckle and songs are heard at 7:45 p. m. EST, Mondays and Fridays. Veteran vaudeville and minstrel man, Harry Frankel (that's his real name) entered radio in 1930 and although he retired two years ago he returned to the air after thousands of listeners wrote him and WLW. Gregor Platigorsky, Famed Cellist to Appear in First Anniversary

Bing Crosby celebrates his first anniversary in the Music Hall Thursday night by presenting three top rank entertainers. His guest stars include Gene Raymond, screen actor; Alice Faye, singer and actress; and Gregor Platigorsky, famous cellist.

Crosby made his first appearance in the Music Hall on Dec. 5, 1935, when he sang over the air from Hollywood with the rest of the show originating from New York. On the first Thursday in 1936 he took over the full hour variety program, originating in Hollywood, as master of ceremonies. Bing was joined by a little known humorist, one Bob Burns, formerly of Van Buren, Ark., who had been heard on this show and others a few times as a guest star.

Gene Raymond won a great reputation as an actor on Broadway before going to Hollywood in 1932. Since then he has appeared in some of the most successful Hollywood productions, including "Red Dust," "Flying Down to Rio," "Sadie McKee," and "Seven Keys to Baldpate." Crosby will interview him.

JOHN RINGLING, FAMOUS CIRCUS MAGNATE, DEAD

Pneumonia Fatal After Few Days' Illness; Career Led to Millions

STARTED AS POOR BOY

"Kid" Shows in Wisconsin Marked Beginning

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(UP)—John Ringling, 70, last brother of the famous Ringling brothers circus family, died of bronchial pneumonia in his New York apartment at 2:45 a. m. today.

Ringling, sixth of seven brothers, had been ill only a few days. Almost to the last he spoke in his low, soft voice to family members and close friends. At his bedside were Ida Ringling North, a sister John Ringling North, a nephew, Frank Hennessy, life-long friend, Dr. Maurice Costello, his personal physician, two nurses and a chauffeur.

Born Poor Boy
John Ringling, called the greatest magnate of the sawdust ring, was born a poor boy.

At the height of his career he was reputed to have been worth $50,000,000, a fortune which dwindled during his later years.

John and four of his brothers started in the entertainment world by holding "kid" circuses on a vacant lot in Baraboo, Wis., long the winter home of the Ringling circus.

In 1884 the show went on the road bannered under an imposing string of descriptive adjectives. It was a success from the start.

During the busy years which followed a number of circuses were bought and merged with Ringling brothers, climaxed in the deal which brought Ringling and Barnum together under one big tent.

John, who dressed conservatively, developed into a great financier. He built railroads, operated oil companies in Oklahoma, and financed various forms of entertainment, including Madison Square gardens under the management of Tex Rickard.

Nearly Always Alone
John billed the show he and his brothers founded as "the greatest show on earth." He continued on the job of making this slogan a reality, working 12 to 18 hours daily. He could almost always be found with the circus on the road until recent years.

The amusement world believed "Mr. John" could put his hand out of a pullman car window at night, feel the air, and report the distance to any nearby county seat. Ringling was said to never swear. He loved to play bridge, but refused to play for money. He never gambled.

Twice married, Ringling had no heirs.

His first wife, the former Mabel Burton, died in 1929. Eighteen months later he married Emily Haag Buck. They were divorced in July 1936.

After reaching the top in the amusement world, John Ringling settled in Sarasota, Fla., where he built a venetian palace and opened a huge art gallery. He spent more than $2,500,000 on his collection, including one of the world's finest groups of rubens.

Had Painted Nails
During divorce proceedings against his wife, Ringling testified she had "painted nails," and that she "had an ungovernable temper."

At the time of his death Ringling was the president of the American Circus corporation, a group composed of five circuses which he and associates purchased for $2,000,000.

MAN'S ABILITY TO WITHSTAND THIRST TESTED

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—Experiments at the University of Michigan medical school have shown that a man can do without water until he has lost 6 per cent of his body weight.

According to Dr. Frederick A. Collier, an average adult, weighing 150 pounds, would not show serious signs of dehydration until he has lost 9 pounds from lack of water. This loss would occur in two or three days and the skin would become dry and hot, the tongue dry and leathery, the eyes sunken.

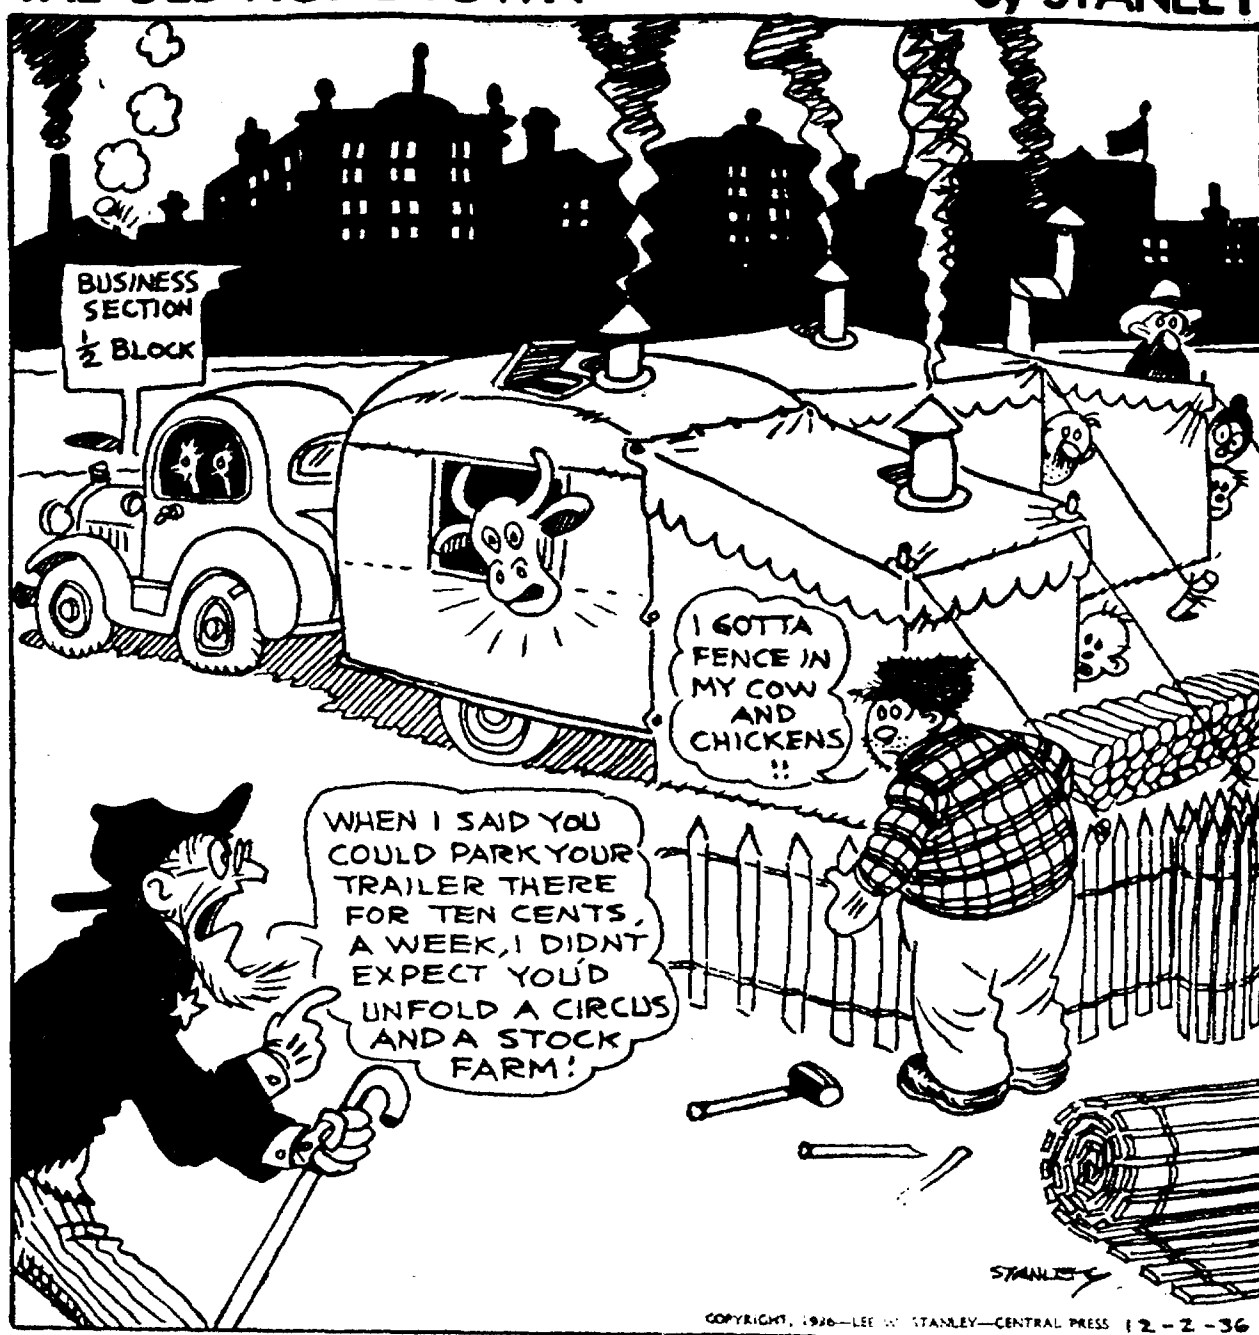

Writing in Modern Medicine Collier states that a person needs at least 2,000 cubic centimeters of water a day to replace the average daily loss of moisture by vaporization through the skin and lungs. There are also other avenues of water escape.

Collier undertook the experiments to determine how much water should be allowed a patient recovering from an operation.

John Ringling, called the greatest magnate of the sawdust ring, was born a poor boy.

At the height of his career he was reputed to have been worth $50,000,000, a fortune which dwindled during his later years.

John and four of his brothers started in the entertainment world by holding "kid" circuses on a vacant lot in Baraboo, Wis., long the winter home of the Ringling circus.

In 1884 the show went on the road bannered under an imposing string of descriptive adjectives. It was a success from the start.

During the busy years which followed a number of circuses were bought and merged with Ringling brothers, culminated in the deal which brought Ringling and Barnum together under one big tent.

John, who dressed conservatively, developed into a great financier. He built railroads, operated oil companies in Oklahoma, and financed various forms of entertainment, including Madison Square gardens under the management of Tex Rickard.

Nearly Always Alone

John billed the show he and his brothers founded as "the greatest show on earth." He continued on the job of making this slogan a reality, working 12 to 18 hours daily. He could almost always be found with the circus on the road until recent years.

The amusement world believed "Mr. John" could put his hand out of a pullman car window at night, feel the air, and report the distance to any nearby county seat. Ringling was said to never swear. He loved to play bridge, but refused to play for money. He never gambled.

Twice married, Ringling had no heirs.

His first wife, the former Mabel Burton, died in 1929. Eighteen months later he married Emily Haag Buck. They were divorced in July 1936.

After reaching the top in the amusement world, John Ringling settled in Sarasota, Fla., where he built a venetian palace and opened a huge art gallery. He spent more than $2,500,000 on his collection, including one of the world's finest groups of rubens.

Had Painted Nails

During divorce proceedings against his wife, Ringling testified she had "painted nails," and that she "had an ungovernable temper."

At the time of his death Ringling was the president of the American Circus corporation, a group composed of five circuses which he and associates purchased for $2,000,000.

MAN'S ABILITY TO WITHSTAND THIRST TESTED

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—Experiments at the University of Michigan medical school have shown that a man can do without water until he has lost 6 per cent of his body weight.

According to Dr. Frederick A. Collier, an average adult, weighing 150 pounds, would not show serious signs of dehydration until he has lost 9 pounds from lack of water. This loss would occur in two or three days and the skin would become dry and hot, the tongue dry and leathery, the eyes sunken.

Writing in Modern Medicine Collier states that a person needs at least 2,000 cubic centimeters of water a day to replace the average daily loss of moisture by vaporization through the skin and lungs. There are also other avenues of water escape. Collier undertook the experiments to determine how much water should be allowed a patient recovering from an operation.

THE NEED FOR WORK

SHORTAGE of labor, predicted by Dr. Moulton of the Brookings Institution, if genuine recovery comes, is in line with similar forecasts made when depression woes were deeper. As each year of postponed production adds its item to the long roll of needs neglected, the expectation that the nation may not have enough labor becomes more certain.

Dr. Moulton's forecast is buttressed by figures similar to those used by earlier analysts. The durable or capital industries alone, were they to strike their 1929 stride, would absorb all of the present unemployed skilled and partly skilled labor. While consumers' goods have suffered a less drastic drop, still the peak of recovery would, according to Dr. Moulton's estimates, create a demand for three or four millions of additional workers.

Inability to see this coming shortage of labor, on the part of those who predict a permanent program for the unemployed, comes from an underestimate of the forces which a genuine recovery releases. These are psychological as well as the actual increase of purchasing power. Even the person who has always had a job loosens up when the road ahead clears. He spends and improves his property, when, under depression's skies, he is only intent on keeping the wolf from the door. Industry is prompted by the same motive and no longer fears to take chances on the future needs of America.

A multitude of the problems which now depress political and labor leaders will seem pale ghosts when real recovery arrives.

MOUNTING MOTOR DEATHS

DESPITE all efforts, educational and punitive, automobile fatalities will reach 37,500 this year at the rate they have occurred in the first nine months. Think of a slaughter of more than 100 human beings daily upon the highways! Yet that is not all the grim story. To it must be added the sufferings of the thousands on thousands more of injured, many of them maimed and crippled for life.

A startling fact disclosed by the National Safety Council's nine-month report is that the increase in fatalities has occurred in the age group between 5 and 24 years. What does it mean? There is no blinking the answer. It means for parents that letting children of tender years unprotected on the streets is inviting fearful consequences. It means for exuberant youth, that driving with the accelerator pressed to the floor board for the mere joy of swift motion is courting death.

Contemplating the probability that this year an all-time top in auto deaths will be reached, there is small comfort in the consideration that partly accountable is the

World At A Glance

Certain eastern European countries (Russia used to be included, until it went bolshevik and anti-clerical) have a religious festival known, to express it in English, as the "Blessing of the Waters". This festival's date is Jan. 20. And it is traditional in that part of the world that the weather on the occasion of the "Blessing of the Waters" always is perfectly diabolical. I don't suppose that this tradition has any meteorological dependability. Still, the temperature is likely to be low on Jan. 20 in any northern part of the northern hemisphere. And as the "Blessing of the Waters" is an out-of-doors performance compelling folk to expose themselves to the season's rigors for a considerable period on that date annually, probably it does seem to them to be the toughest day in the year climatically as a general proposition.

WASHINGTON WINTER
The mercury does not tell the story. I have experienced Dakota temperatures a couple of dozen degrees below zero which were quite endurable, as compared with Washington temperatures only a couple of degrees below freezing which were mightily uncomfortable.

COLD INAUGURATION?
Well, presidential inauguration day in Washington now has become Jan. 20, instead of March 4, as heretofore. It is notorious that most presidents have been inaugurated in the midst of rough weather. President Taft was sworn in to the ac-

BRING YOUR EAR MUFFS!
Yet Washington purposes to make next Jan. 20th's inauguration the spectacular event of all time. It is preparing 14,000 seats, and which spectators are to observe the procession. Believe me, they will do well to bring their ear muffs. And their overcoats—waterproof ones. It is explained that, if the weather is inclement, President Roosevelt will be re-inaugurated, not in the open—but in the senate chamber. A fat lot of good this will do to the multitude outside. HAD TIME OF YEAR
I probably shall be accused of throwing cold water on a glorious celebration. It will be glorious, maybe—if the weather is fairly good. It will be crowded anyway, but its hardships may be very considerable. The weather will be rotten—on Jan. 20, or Jan. 19 or Jan. 21, when the visitors will be doing their traveling. It just simply is a terrible time of year for inauguration. "CLASSY"—OR "FLAT"?
Will it be a classy inauguration? Because of 1936's big victory? Or will it be rather a flat inauguration? Because unseasonable? We'll see on Jan. 20.

MAYORS WILL DEMAND SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON—A committee of leading mayors of the country has hot-coal up its sleeve for New Deal relief chiefs.

Their surprise will be a descent on the Works Progress Administration in their official capacity, to demand a showdown on the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't policy the White House has been pursuing for the past few weeks on the relief question.

During the campaign the President gave unequivocal assurances that federal relief would be continued. At the recent meeting of the U. S. Conference of Mayors both he and WPA boss Harry Hopkins reiterated that pledge. Yet, at that very moment, the WPA was secretly ordering thousands of jobless lopped off relief rolls.

The mayors take the rap in such a move. It is they, and not the big-guns in Washington, who have to do the actual laying off. And with thousands of complaints cracking about their heads the city fathers are up in arms.

To them the unemployment problem is a grim reality of individuals—and not a statistical table. Also, it is a very important matter of votes.

So the mayors are quite angry. After talking it over among themselves they decided to organize a committee, headed by New York's plain-talking Mayor LaGuardia, confront WPA moguls and find out just what the regime is up to.

DEEP MYSTERY

Hopkins' aides insist there is nothing to explain. They say no general order to cut relief rolls was issued, no quotas fixed of the number of jobless to be dropped. The curtailment was merely a temporary economy measure. (Three thousand unemployed were cut off relief in one day in New York.)

Privately, however, the WPAers admit that they too are mystified by the axing policy. They confess they have no definite information of the number let out.

Two reasons are put forward for the curtailment:

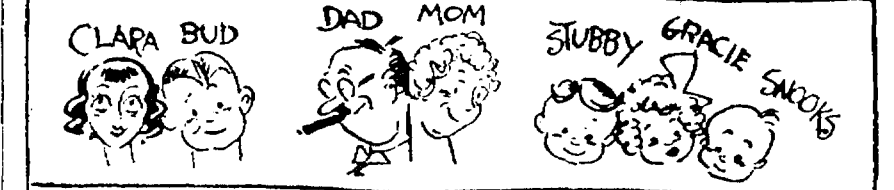

One, that WPA funds are running short because last summer's severe drought necessitated the expenditure of more money than had been anticipated.

Two, that the Administration is playing a deep tactical game. By slashing relief, state and local officials will be prompted to bring pressure on their Senators and Congressmen for new funds and thus ease the way for the President to obtain such appropriations.

greatly increased auto mileage as indicated by a 10 per cent increase in gasoline consumption. To be sure it is an offset, and when given weight might show that the number of fatalities was no larger relatively than a year ago. However, whether 37,500 or 36,400, the latter is the 1935 total, the death toll is too high.

As showing the areas where more intensive preventive work might profitably be undertaken, the comparison between the percentage drop from last year in the larger cities and the percentage increase in the smaller communities is enlightening. Certainly if present efforts do not avail, the only alternative is something more drastic.

What Part of Life Span Do Folk Want Longer?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. SHAKESPEARE, through the mouth of Jacques, defined seven ages of man: the infant, the whining schoolboy, the lover, the soldier, the justice, the lean and slippered pantaloon, second childhood—sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

Medical science realizes that the span of life is divided into stages, but does not entirely follow. We may sigh for the pleasures of sweet sixteen, and yet I suppose few people who remember distinctly that dreadful period of readjustment would want to live it over again. It is the time when we are trying to get used to the world as an adult, but without the means or power to make the world take us seriously.

Carl Van Doren, in his interesting new book, "Three Worlds", speaks of the profound melancholy that settles down upon young men because they are unable to translate their dreams and desires into action.

At the other end of the line, I don't suppose many people want to stick around after 65. Nor am I thoroughly convinced that my friend, Walter B. Pitkin, is right that life begins at 40. It sometimes begins to get very uncomfortable at 40, what with insomnia, rheumatism, palpitation of the heart, deafness, eyeglasses, false teeth and hair in the ears.

So I suppose the real choice for the period of prolongation would be somewhere between 25 and 40. Medical science cannot prolong this period, but it can do a good deal to keep people from dying off before the later ages are reached. We will discuss some of these things in the column this week.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Feeding and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Poems That Live

TO A YOUNG LADY
Sweet stream, that winds through yonder glade,
Apt emblem of a virtuous maid!
Silent and chaste she steals along,
Far from the world's gay busy throng;
With gentle yet prevailing force,
Intent upon her destined course;
Graceful and useful all she does,
Blessing and best wherever she goes:
Pure—hoomed as that water glass,
And heaven reflected in her face!

The BLOODHOUNDS Bay By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

He wasn't drowned, then?

My husband is a very bad sleeper, and for that reason has preferred for some time to have his own room. I did not see him after dinner last night when he went to his study—where he will never be disturbed.

"And you, Lady Severinge, are you too a light sleeper?" The smooth manner had suddenly gone from Selden's voice and he shot the question at her. A look of terror and something that resembled shame showed itself on her face for a moment.

"No, I sleep very well, thank you," she said calmly enough, but there was a tremor in the voice. "I may take it, then, Lady Severinge, that you did not leave your room during the night; is that so?"

"Of course not. What is the meaning of that question, please?" "I merely wished to be reassured on that point. You might have heard something and gone to see what it was."

She answered scornfully: "You are very young to be in charge of such an investigation."

"We were your study," Selden said, ignoring the remark. "My husband—goodness knows, I haven't been there for ages," she said lightly.

Hutchins moved restlessly: this was all quite irregular. Selden should have given the necessary caution, he thought, if he were making any accusation.

"What made you think that he might have been drowned?" "I don't know," she answered wearily. "I thought perhaps he might have tried to cross the lake and fallen into a deep part."

"That would hardly have been murder, would it?" "Of course not; no, I suppose I really didn't think that. I was afraid."

Selden saw that the woman was on the verge of hysteria, and that a further examination might upset her balance altogether.

"I won't worry you now with further questions, but if I can do anything to help, please call on me. I am investigating this affair with Inspector Hutchins, but my services are at your disposal. You are of course as eager to trace the criminal as I am."

Lady Severinge hastily agreed: "Yes, of course he must be found. You know that an attack was made on Sir Henry some time ago?"

"I have been informed your old agent was suspected, wasn't he? We must hunt him up, Inspector," he turned round to Hutchins and solemnly winked.

"You heard nothing at all during the night?" Selden asked casually. Lady Severinge became confused. "I should hardly have done so."

THE NEED FOR WORK
SHORTAGE of labor, predicted by Dr. Moulton of the Brookings Institution, if genuine recovery comes, is in line with similar forecasts made when depression woes were deeper. As each year of postponed production adds its item to the long roll of needs neglected, the expectation that the nation may not have enough labor becomes more certain.

Dr. Moulton's forecast is buttressed by figures similar to those used by earlier analysts. The durable or capital industries alone, were they to strike their 1929 stride, would absorb all of the present unemployed skilled and partly skilled labor. While consumers' goods have suffered a less drastic drop, still the peak of recovery would, according to Dr. Moulton's estimates, create a demand for three or four millions of additional workers.

Inability to see this coming shortage of labor, on the part of those who predict a permanent program for the unemployed, comes from an underestimate of the forces which a genuine recovery releases. These are psychological as well as the actual increase of purchasing power. Even the person who has always had a job loosens up when the road ahead clears. He spends and improves his property, when, under depression's skies, he is only intent on keeping the wolf from the door. Industry is prompted by the same motive and no longer fears to take chances on the future needs of America.

A multitude of the problems which now depress political and labor leaders will seem pale ghosts when real recovery arrives.

MOUNTING MOTOR DEATHS
DESPITE all efforts, educational and punitive, automobile fatalities will reach 37,500 this year at the rate they have occurred in the first nine months. Think of a slaughter of more than 100 human beings daily upon the highways! Yet that is not all the grim story. To it must be added the sufferings of the thousands on thousands more of injured, many of them maimed and crippled for life.

A startling fact disclosed by the National Safety Council's nine-month report is that the increase in fatalities has occurred in the age group between 5 and 24 years. What does it mean? There is no blinking the answer. It means for parents that letting children of tender years unprotected on the streets is inviting fearful consequences. It means for exuberant youth, without implying youth alone is guilty, that driving with the accelerator pressed to the floor board for the mere joy of swift motion is courting death.

Contemplating the probability that this year an all-time top in auto deaths will be reached, there is small comfort in the consideration that partly accountable is the

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
MAYORS WILL DEMAND SHOWDOWN
WASHINGTON—A committee of leading mayors of the country has hot-coal up its sleeve for New Deal relief chiefs.
Their surprise will be a descent on the Works Progress Administration in their official capacity, to demand a showdown on the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't policy the White House has been pursuing for the past few weeks on the relief question.
During the campaign the President gave unequivocal assurances that federal relief would be continued. At the recent meeting of the U. S. Conference of Mayors both he and WPA boss Harry Hopkins reiterated that pledge. Yet, at that very moment, the WPA was secretly ordering thousands of jobless lopped off relief rolls.
The mayors take the rap in such a move. It is they, and not the big-guns in Washington, who have to do the actual laying off. And with thousands of complaints cracking about their heads the city fathers are up in arms.
To them the unemployment problem is a grim reality of individuals—and not a statistical table. Also, it is a very important matter of votes.
So the mayors are quite angry. After talking it over among themselves they decided to organize a committee, headed by New York's plain-talking Mayor LaGuardia, confront WPA moguls and find out just what the regime is up to.

DEEP MYSTERY
Hopkins' aides insist there is nothing to explain. They say no general order to cut relief rolls was issued, no quotas fixed of the number of jobless to be dropped. The curtailment was merely a temporary economy measure. (Three thousand unemployed were cut off relief in one day in New York.)
Privately, however, the WPAers admit that they too are mystified by the axing policy. They confess they have no definite information of the number let out.
Two reasons are put forward for the curtailment:
One, that WPA funds are running short because last summer's severe drought necessitated the expenditure of more money than had been anticipated.
Two, that the Administration is playing a deep tactical game. By slashing relief, state and local officials will be prompted to bring pressure on their Senators and Congressmen for new funds and thus ease the way for the President to obtain such appropriations.

greatly increased auto mileage as indicated by a 10 per cent increase in gasoline consumption. To be sure it is an offset, and when given weight might show that the number of fatalities was no larger relatively than a year ago. However, whether 37,500 or 36,400, the latter is the 1935 total, the death toll is too high.

As showing the areas where more intensive preventive work might profitably be undertaken, the comparison between the percentage drop from last year in the larger cities and the percentage increase in the smaller communities is enlightening. Certainly if present efforts do not avail, the only alternative is something more drastic.

World At A Glance
—By—
Charles P. Stewart
Certain eastern European countries (Russia used to be included until it went bolshevik and anti-clerical) have a religious festival known, to express it in English, as the "Blessing of the Waters."
This festival's date is Jan. 20.
And it is traditional in that part of the world that the weather on the occasion of the "Blessing of the Waters" always is perfectly diabolical. I don't suppose that this tradition has any meteorological dependability. Still, the temperature is likely to be low on Jan. 20 in any northern part of the northern hemisphere. And as the "Blessing of the Waters" is an out-of-doors performance, compelling folk to expose themselves to the season's rigors for a considerable period on that date annually, probably it does seem to them to be the toughest day in the year climatically as a general proposition.
COLD INAUGURATION?
Well, presidential inauguration day in Washington now has become Jan. 20, instead of March 4, as heretofore.
March 4 was bad enough.
It is notorious that most presidents have been inaugurated in the midst of rough weather. President Taft was sworn in to the accompaniment of a blizzard. It was perishing cold the second time President Wilson was inaugurated.
Nevertheless, a Washington March is not as fierce as a Washington January.
WASHINGTON WINTER
The mercury does not tell the story.
I have experienced Dakota temperatures a couple of dozen degrees below zero which were quite endurable, as compared with Washington temperatures only a couple of degrees below freezing which were mightily uncomfortable.
And the snow?
In the northwest, it is nice, dry stuff, to be waded around in. In Washington it is about a foot deep. Most of it is ice-water, with just enough snow to prevent the water from running off, down the sewers. Only in rubber boots can a Washingtonian or a visitor set foot on a pavement without soaking himself knee-high or thereabouts.
BRING YOUR EAR MUFFS!
Yet Washington purposes to make next Jan. 20th's inauguration the spectacular event of all time. It is preparing 14,000 seats, from which spectators are to observe the procession. Believe me, they will do well to bring their ear muffs. And their overshoes—waterproof ones.
It is explained that, if the weather is inclement, President Roosevelt will be re-inaugurated, not in the open—but in the senate chamber.
A fat lot of good this will do to the multitude outside.
BAD TIME OF YEAR
I probably shall be accused of throwing cold water on a glorious celebration.
It will be glorious, maybe — if the weather is fairly good.
It will be crowded anyway, but its hardships may be very considerable.
The weather will be rotten — on Jan. 20, or Jan. 19 or Jan. 21, when the visitors will be doing their traveling.
It just simply is a terrible time of year for inauguration.
"CLASSY"—OR "FLAT"?
Will it be a classy inauguration? Because of 1936's big victory?
Or will it be rather a flat inauguration? Because unseasonable?
We'll see on Jan. 20.

What Part of Life Span Do Folk Want Longer?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
SHAKESPEARE, through the mouth of Jacques, defined seven ages of man; the infant, the whining schoolboy, the lover, the soldier, the justice, the lean and slippered pantaloon, second childhood—sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans every thing.

Dr. Clending

Medical science realizes that the span of life is divided into stages, but does not entirely follow Shakespeare. It makes six divisions: infancy—from birth to the age of 3; childhood—from the age of 3 to the age of 12; adolescence—from 12 to 20; maturity—from 20 to 50; middle age or vigorous age—from 50 to 65; senility—from 65 on.
When we think about extending the span of life the question arises, which particular period do you want extended? It was the problem of Faust. He was to be released from his bargain if at any moment in life he felt like prolonging it indefinitely. At what period in life will you, like Faust, be tempted to say, "Stay! Stay! Thou art so fair!"
Few people, I believe, would wish to prolong the period of infancy. It is a period of animal enjoyment. Childhood is not very much better. It has no continuity. You remember detached episodes of your childhood, but nothing in between. To lengthen it would merely add to the number of episodes, others like them in quality—to the point of surfeit and yet, ironically, medical science can do more to prolong infancy and childhood and to make them safe than any other period of life.
Sign of Adolescence
We may sigh for the pleasures of sweet sixteen, and yet I suppose few people who remember distinctly that dreadful period of readjustment would want to live it over again. It is the time when we are trying to get used to the means or power to make the world take us seriously.
Carl Van Doren, in his interesting new book, "Three Worlds", speaks of the profound melancholy that settles down upon young men because they are unable to translate their dreams and desires into action.
At the other end of the line, I don't suppose many people want to stick around after 65.
Nor am I thoroughly convinced that my friend, Walter B. Pitkin, is right that life begins at 40. It sometimes begins to get very uncomfortable at 40, what with insomnia, rheumatism, palpitation of the heart, deafness, eyeglasses, false teeth and hair in the ears.
So I suppose the real choice for the period of prolongation would be somewhere between 25 and 40. Medical science cannot prolong this period, but it can do a good deal to keep people from dying off before the later ages are reached.
We will discuss some of these things in the column this week.
EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of the paper. The BLOODHOUNDS BAY
By WALTER S. MASTERMAN
COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
READ THIS FIRST:
Jack Reid, who has just witnessed the mysterious murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of his ancient abbey, is a neo-do-well who has lived by his wits since he left an orphanage. In the chapel he stole a valuable jeweled cross. Reid could not identify Sir Henry's slayer and could raise no alarm for fear of incriminating himself. Next day Reid, who has been posing as an itinerant painter working at the abbey, and Eric Colindale, agent of the estate who is in love with Lady Severing, trace the missing Sir Henry to the chapel door by means of bloodhounds. The bloodhounds trace Sir Henry's scent to the coffin of his father in the crypt beneath the abbey chapel. Then Colonel Graham, owner of the bloodhounds, announces he will call in Scotland Yard. At the Yard, the colonel obtains the services of young detective, Richard Selden. Back at the abbey, Colonel Graham, Selden and Hutchins, the local police official, go into the crypt and find Sir Henry's body in the coffin of his father. He had been stabbed to death. An urn, containing the ashes of Sir Henry's father, is also in the coffin where it had been placed at his death. During the investigation that follows it is revealed that Sir Henry became a recluse following his marriage a few years previously. Selden interviews Colindale, James, the butler, and Reid and learns that Lady Severing is a former mannequin. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)
CHAPTER 12
"HAS COLINDALE told Lady Severing that we found Sir Henry's body?" Selden asked Reid.
"Lady Severing has locked herself in her room," Reid said. "I have been keeping Colindale company during our captivity, playing billiards."
The constable had been waiting like a sentry on duty outside the door, and saluted as the men came out of the study. He led the way to Lady Severing's private sitting room, while Reid went off to find Colindale.
The constable knocked, and called through the door that a detective from London and Inspector Hutchins wished to see her. After a pause the door was unlocked, and Hilda appeared in the entrance, her face very white and with signs of tears on her cheeks, hastily powdered before she had opened the door.
"I am afraid," Selden said, after he had introduced himself, "I have some very grave news to tell you, Lady Severing."
"I knew it—I was certain when I heard he was missing. My husband is dead."
"Yes; you must know the truth—he has been murdered."
She was quite calm, for the news did not take her by surprise.
"It is terrible for you," Selden said in a soothing voice, "especially when you are so much alone here, with no one but servants. I suppose I could not wire for you to some relative."
"I have no relations at all," she answered, and he knew she was lying. "I must inform the family lawyer, Mr. Livingston."
She asked for no details, taking the fact for granted that Sir Henry had been murdered somehow.
"The body of your husband is lying in the chapel at present," Selden said sternly.
The woman shuddered, and her eyes turned to the lake through the open window. "He wasn't drowned, then?" she murmured.
"What made you think that he might have been drowned?"
"I don't know," she answered wearily. "I thought perhaps he might have tried to cross the lake and fallen into a deep part."
"That would hardly have been murder, would it?"
"Of course not; no, I suppose I really didn't think that. I was afraid."
Selden saw that the woman was on the verge of hysteria, and that a further examination might upset her balance altogether.
"I won't worry you now with further questions, but if I can do anything to help, please call on me. I am investigating this affair with Inspector Hutchins, but my services are at your disposal. You are of course as eager to trace the criminal as I am."
Lady Severing hastily agreed: "Yes, of course he must be found. You know that an attack was made on Sir Henry some time ago?"
"I have been informed your old agent was suspected, wasn't he? We must hunt him up, Inspector."
He turned round to Hutchins and solemnly winked.
"You heard nothing at all during the night?" Selden asked casually.
Lady Severing became confused.
"I should hardly have done so."

PITTSBURGH REPORTED TO HOLD INSIDE TRACK FOR ROSE BOWL TILT

HUSKY VARSITY MEN FAVOR BID TO PANTHER 11

All-American Guard Says Team Wants to Meet Best in Country

JIMMY PHELAN SILENT

Announcement May Be Made Early Next Week

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 2.—(UP) The University of Pittsburgh, defeated only by its city rival Duquesne in one of the season's outstanding upsets, today was reported to have the inside track for the Rose Bowl spot along with the University of Washington.

The Huskies, who won the Pacific conference title and the right to represent the west, will announce selection of their opponent Monday, it is believed.

Alabama or Louisiana State, both unbeaten but tied, had received top unofficial consideration for the New Year's day game, but a poll of the Washington squad taken by the Washington daily showed a majority of the players preferred the Panthers.

Want Best Team

"We want to meet the toughest team in the country," said Max Starcevic, all-American guard. "Pitt has the best team in the east, and outside of Washington, the best in the nation."

Assistants on the coaching staff also reportedly had told friends that the bid would go to Pitt. Jim Phelan, head coach, however, refused to discuss the matter.

Pittsburgh had been to the Rose Bowl three times without gaining a victory. In 1923 they went west with a great team and lost to Stanford 6 to 7. Two years later Southern California swamped them 47 to 14 and in 1933 repeated with a 35 to 0 rout.

CINCINNATI AND NEW YORK AFTER DEAN CONTRACT

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 2.—(UP) — The nation's baseball men gathered here today for the opening of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues but one gangling member's absence overshadowed the whole show.

The minor league session convened with important legislative matters. The major leaguers remained in the lobby to talk trade. But Dizzy Dean — the main actor — was 1,000 miles away in Bradenton, Fla.

The question on every tongue was: "Where will Dizzy Dean go?" It was taken for granted that Dizzy, most colorful, if not the best, pitcher in the land has donned a St. Louis Cardinal uniform for the last time.

Branch Rickey, master mind of the Cardinals' vast baseball properties, said:

"We will make any deal that will strengthen the Cardinals. Dean or any other player will go if we can bolster our team."

The bidding for Dean is apparently between the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds.

GOPHERS SEEN AS POWERFUL FOR NEXT YEAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(UP) — Minnesota's perennial Gophers, national football champions for two years and chief claimant to the uncertain 1936 title, will rule the Big 10 for another season with one of their greatest teams, a survey of conference graduating rosters indicated today.

Although Coach Bernie Bierman will lose 11 experienced men, including Co-Captains Ed Widseth and Julie Alfonso, his losses are small compared to those he weathered the last two years.

Graduation will wreck the Northwestern varsity that achieved the school's first undisputed western conference championship. Ohio State, losing seven key men, finds its 1937 prospects fair. Purdue loses seven, too, but the Boilermakers will be better.

Gone from the Gophers will be Ray Antil, Dominic Krezowski and Bruce Berryman, ends; Widseth, all-American tackle; Bud Svendsen and Stanley Hanson, centers; Bud Wilkinson, Harvey Ring, Alfonso, Whitman Rork and Clarence (Tuffy) Thompson, backs.

New food regulations in Baltimore require that oysters and clams sold in that city must be grown in waters free from contamination and shipped by certified plants.

Razzle-Dazzle Game Needs No Pallbearers

By HARRY STUHLREHER
Coach University of Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 2.—Many football camps are resounding with on outcry against "razzle dazzle" football, the wide-open passing style of play that has spread widely during the last two years.

Razzle dazzle got its start in the southwest when Southern Methodist came to be known as the "Aerial Circus". It takes time to get style under way, and due credit must be given Ray Morrison, present Vanderbilt coach, then at S. M. U., for his patience and belief in passing possibilities.

Cowboy Stuff

Morrison did not invent the forward pass. You and I know that it has been used, in a restrained way, by every football team in the country. Generally it was employed as a threat rather than as an integral part of offensive operation.

The southwest, however, had other ideas about it. I asked Morrison once what prompted him to go into the forward and lateral pass so extensively. He laughingly remarked that the people in his section had to have excitement.

"You know," he said, "those cow punchers sit up in the stand with those six-shooters dangling in their holsters. If they don't have action, they whip them out and see that they get it. I value my life, so action it is." Morrison also told me about a game they lost, 2-0. The score came late in the fourth quarter. They weren't interested in a tie score, but in a win. Although backed up against their own goal line, the boys went to the air. In one attempt, the passer was thrown for a safety before he could get the ball away.

"I wasn't a bit critical of the quarterback's judgment," Ray said. "I would much rather have them lose trying than to have them satisfied with the double goose egg."

Sugar Bowl Incident

Wasn't this same situation brought about in the Sugar Bowl game last year? Sammy Baugh, quarterback, had one of his passes blocked behind his own goal line by the fast charging Louisiana State line. This may seem crazy football and, believe me, those two points grew bigger and bigger as the game went on. But T. C. U. finally got in position and kicked a field goal

Notre Dame's Ramblers, who after a mediocre start came back to smash Ohio State, Army and Northwestern, tackled University of Southern California at Los Angeles in the headline affair, while Manhattan's Jaspers meet Texas A. and M. at Tyler, Tex., and St. Mary's Galloping Gaels entertain Pop Warner's Temple Owls at San Francisco.

The southwestern conference championship still has to be decided, and Arkansas, present co-leader with T.C.U., gets a chance for sole possession of the title when the Razorbacks tackle University of Texas at Little Rock.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2.—(UP)—A switch of the Western conference swimming meet next March from Indiana University to Ohio State appeared probable today.

Indiana was awarded the meet with the understanding it would make certain alterations in its pool. The changes have not been made nor has any provision allowed for them, coach Mike Peppe of Ohio State said.

As a result Peppe extended an invitation to hold the 1937 meet here. Final action will be made by Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western conference.

Ohio State already has been awarded the 1938 Big Ten meet and the 1939 National Intercollegiate meet.

The Bucks were host to a major aquatic event in their new natatorium in 1934 when the National A.A.U. meet was sponsored.

Minnesota Example

We have had a more recent example in the Minnesota team. In the early part of the year, the Gophers were having great success with the lateral pass. They hadn't gone lateral crazy as some people would have you believe, but Coach Bernie Bierman had developed the game to such a point that they knew what they know were doing.

I can still hear the cry after the Northwestern game. Lateral attempts were supposed to have lost the game for Minnesota. It was a bad day—the game being played in the rain—and probably the ball was hard to handle.

But in the cases of Both S. M. U. and Minnesota, the critics failed to take into consideration that this type of game brought the teams to the front line in football ranking. S. M. U. finished up the regular season last year undefeated, principally through the passing game.

Minnesota beat Nebraska, 7-0, this year with a lateral. Then, too, in the Purdue game, with the Boilermakers holding sway in the first half, Minnesota got its first touchdown by two cleverly executed lateral passes that carried the Gophers three quarters of the length of the field.

About This And That In Many Sports

Captain's Team Best

OF THE MANY All-American teams picked this year, the one that seems more authentic than any of the other mythical elevens is that selected by captains. — Men who actually compete are in a position to see (and feel) what is going on. — Even the coach is removed from the thick of things. — The man who runs, blocks, tackles and passes is pretty sure to know (and again feel) football merit whether it's on his side or against him. — There is a lot of hand-to-hand combat in football and even the war correspondents can see only the high spots. — A lineman who plays opposite a dozen or more different linemen in a season can pick out the best man without much trouble. — Bruises are easy to remember. * * *

Sixth Straight Year

Captains in all parts of the country expressed their choices for positions on the All-American chosen this year by Central Press. — This is the sixth year such a team has been picked, and year by year it is growing more popular. — Counsel from the captains makes the job of selecting an All-American a very easy matter. — The captains not only know the stars of the opposition through personal and often violent contact, but they are keenly aware of the abilities and limitations of their mates. — Take the Big Ten as an example. — In the poll captains of eight Big Ten universities participated. — There was a surprising unanimity of choices, not only in the selection of Big Ten players, but in the nomination of stars met in intersectional battles. — The same thing was true in other conferences. — The captains know at first hand how such details as blocking, forward pass execution and defense, charging and opening of holes by linemen, spilling of enemy plays are carried out. — Some great open field runners owe their reputations to deadly interference. — Now and then some Nagurski comes along to run his own interference, and the captains of the teams he plays against are pretty sure to be the first to recognize the problem on their hands. * * *

Widseth Vindicated

Captains have, as a rule, a sense of fair play which more removed All-American selectors often do not take into account. — News-story stories on the Minnesota-Northwestern game made big Ed Widseth, tackle, the goat. — It was a slugging penalty that gave Northwestern the ball at Minnesota's goal line, and officials explained that the penalty was invoked because Widseth had struck Don Geyer, Northwestern fullback, in the face. — The publicity given that incident created a wide impression that Widseth was not a clean player. — The penalty cost the Gophers the ball game. — The captains, however, vindicated the Minnesota tackle when they voted almost unanimously for him. — One captain thoughtfully wrote, "Widseth was the cleanest player we have met." — Once in a while in the captains' ballots, one is found who votes for himself. — That did not occur this year. The boys must be getting bashful! * * *

Germany Ratios Luxury

BERLIN (UP) — The threatened shortage of butter is depriving many Germans of whipped cream. Under orders from the Reich Agricultural Corporation German dairies must not sell whipped cream to individuals, while sales to cafes, confectionaries and restaurants must not exceed a given quota.

Since ephedrine has gained wide use in treating nasal ailments, the Chinese scientist who isolated it from a wild Chinese herb is seeking possibilities in other Eastern herb remedies.

Bidding went: East, 1-Spade; West, 2-Clubs; North, 2-Diamonds; East, 2-Hearts; South, 3-Diamonds; West, 3-Hearts; East, 4-Hearts, which South doubled.

The opening lead was the 2 of diamonds. That and the assist marked the leader with originally four of his partner's suit. An important item later on. Dummy's Ace won. The Ace of hearts was led, dropping North's lone J, and marking South with still holding the K-8-6 of trumps. Probably South would not have doubled had he not held the guarded Q of spades, but that had to be determined.

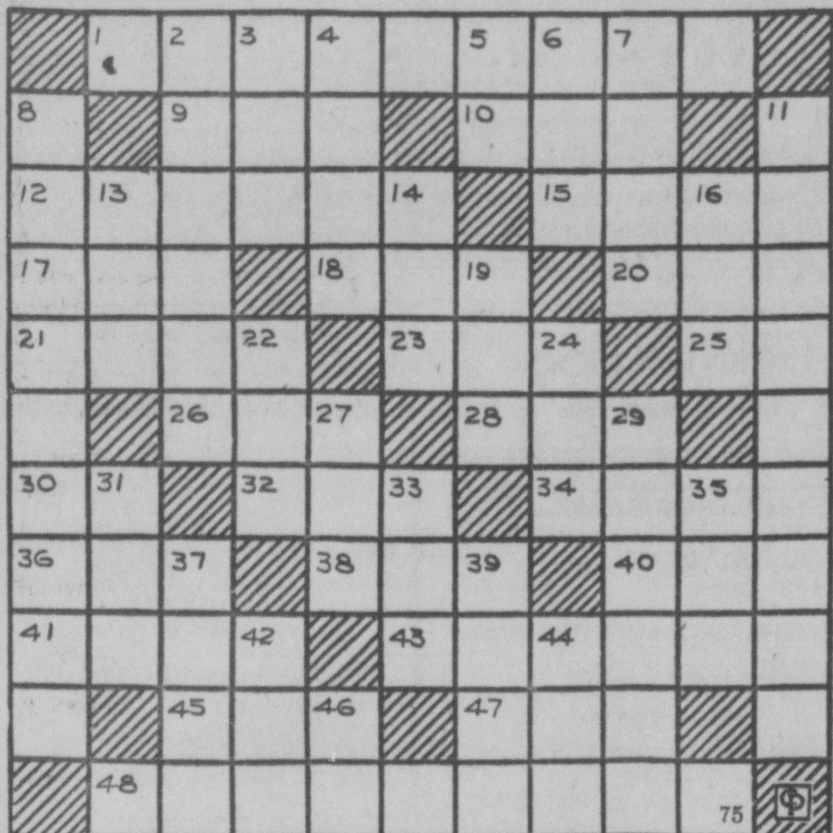

Dummy's lone spade was led. Declarer could afford to lose a single trick in that suit, as well as one trump and one club trick, but no more. The 10 was finessed and lost to South's Q of spades. That player led back his top diamond. Declarer ruffed, reducing his trump holdings to the same number as South held.

Declarer took three rounds of winning spades, and South followed suit. As he originally held four cards of each suit except clubs, declarer took the precaution to lead the Ace of clubs, picking up South's lone card of that suit. On the three rounds of winning spades dummy's last diamond and two low clubs were discarded. At the end of the eighth trick the five cards left each player were as shown below. Declarer had won 7 tricks and lost one. He needed 8 added tricks.

Declarer led his last spade, forcing the doubler to ruff or let go one of his diamonds. Suppose South to make that useless play. The next lead would be a low heart, requiring the play of South's K to win the trick. East's play of the club had deprived South of a lead of that suit, when in with his K. Dummy would ruff a diamond if led by South and declarer would let go his last club, giving declarer one trick over his contract. In case South declined to win with his K of trumps, dummy would win, giving declarer two of the three tricks needed for game. He would then be bound to win one more added trump trick, giving him game. No matter what South did he could not prevent declarer from winning three of the last five tricks played, and giving him his contract.

A WELL PLAYED HAND
HERE is a hand played exceptionally well, by Mr. John Streeter, Cleveland, O. His reasons for playing as he did also were rational.

DECLARER TOOK THREE ROUNDS OF WINNING SPADES, AND SOUTH FOLLOWED SUIT. AS HE ORIGINALLY HELD FOUR CARDS OF EACH SUIT EXCEPT CLUBS, DECLARER TOOK THE PRECAUTION TO LEAD THE ACE OF CLUBS, PICKING UP SOUTH'S LONE CARD OF THAT SUIT. ON THE THREE ROUNDS OF WINNING SPADES DUMMY'S LAST DIAMOND AND TWO LOW CLUBS WERE DISCARDED. AT THE END OF THE EIGHTH TRICK THE FIVE CARDS LEFT EACH PLAYER WERE AS SHOWN BELOW. DECLARER HAD WON 7 TRICKS AND LOST ONE. HE NEEDED 8 ADDED TRICKS.

DECLARER LED HIS LAST SPADE, FORCING THE DOUBLER TO RUFF OR LET GO ONE OF HIS DIAMONDS. SUPPOSE SOUTH TO MAKE THAT USELESS PLAY. THE NEXT LEAD WOULD BE A LOW HEART, REQUIRING THE PLAY OF SOUTH'S K TO WIN THE TRICK. EAST'S PLAY OF THE CLUB HAD DEPRIVED SOUTH OF A LEAD OF THAT SUIT, WHEN IN WITH HIS K. DUMMY WOULD RUFF A DIAMOND IF LED BY SOUTH AND DECLARER WOULD LET GO HIS LAST CLUB, GIVING DECLARER ONE TRICK OVER HIS CONTRACT. IN CASE SOUTH DECLINED TO WIN WITH HIS K OF TRUMPS, DUMMY WOULD WIN, GIVING DECLARER TWO OF THE THREE TRICKS NEEDED FOR GAME. IF SOUTH WOULD BE BOUND TO WIN ONE ADDED TRUMP TRICK, GIVING HIM GAME. NO MATTER WHAT SOUTH DID PLAYER LED BACK HIS TOP DIAMOND. DECLARER RUFFED, REDUCING HIS TRUMP HOLDINGS TO THE SAME NUMBER AS SOUTH HELD.

BIDDING WENT: East, 1-Spade; West, 2-Clubs; North, 2-Diamonds; East, 2-Hearts; South, 3-Diamonds; West, 3-Hearts; East, 4-Hearts, which South doubled.

THE OPENING LEAD WAS THE 2 OF DIAMONDS. THAT AND THE ASSIST MARKED THE LEADER WITH ORIGINALLY FOUR OF HIS PARTNER'S SUIT. AN IMPORTANT ITEM LATER ON. DUMMY'S ACE WON. THE ACE OF HEARTS WAS LED, DROPPING NORTH'S LONE J, AND MARKING SOUTH WITH STILL HOLDING THE K-8-6 OF TRUMPS. PROBABLY SOUTH WOULD NOT HAVE DOUBLED HAD HE NOT HELD THE GUARDED Q OF SPADES, BUT THAT HAD TO BE DETERMINED.

DUMMY'S LONE SPADE WAS LED. DECLARER COULD AFFORD TO LOSE A SINGLE TRICK IN THAT SUIT, AS WELL AS ONE TRUMP AND ONE CLUB TRICK, BUT NO MORE. THE 10 WAS FINESSED AND LOST TO SOUTH'S Q OF SPADES. THAT PLAYER LED BACK HIS TOP DIAMOND. DECLARER RUFFED, REDUCING HIS TRUMP HOLDINGS TO THE SAME NUMBER AS SOUTH HELD.

DECLARER TOOK THREE ROUNDS OF WINNING SPADES, AND SOUTH FOLLOWED SUIT. AS HE ORIGINALLY HELD FOUR CARDS OF EACH SUIT EXCEPT CLUBS, DECLARER TOOK THE PRECAUTION TO LEAD THE ACE OF CLUBS, PICKING UP SOUTH'S LONE CARD OF THAT SUIT. ON THE THREE ROUNDS OF WINNING SPADES DUMMY'S LAST DIAMOND AND TWO LOW CLUBS WERE DISCARDED. AT THE END OF THE EIGHTH TRICK THE FIVE CARDS LEFT EACH PLAYER WERE AS SHOWN BELOW. DECLARER HAD WON 7 TRICKS AND LOST ONE. HE NEEDED 8 ADDED TRICKS.

DECLARER LED HIS LAST SPADE, FORCING THE DOUBLER TO RUFF OR LET GO ONE OF HIS DIAMONDS. SUPPOSE SOUTH TO MAKE THAT USELESS PLAY. THE NEXT LEAD WOULD BE A LOW HEART, REQUIRING THE PLAY OF SOUTH'S K TO WIN THE TRICK. EAST'S PLAY OF THE CLUB HAD DEPRIVED SOUTH OF A LEAD OF THAT SUIT, WHEN IN WITH HIS K. DUMMY WOULD RUFF A DIAMOND IF LED BY SOUTH AND DECLARER WOULD LET GO HIS LAST CLUB, GIVING DECLARER ONE TRICK OVER HIS CONTRACT. IN CASE SOUTH DECLINED TO WIN WITH HIS K OF TRUMPS, DUMMY WOULD WIN, GIVING DECLARER TWO OF THE THREE TRICKS NEEDED FOR GAME. IF SOUTH WOULD BE BOUND TO WIN ONE ADDED TRUMP TRICK, GIVING HIM GAME. NO MATTER WHAT SOUTH DID PLAYER LED BACK HIS TOP DIAMOND. DECLARER RUFFED, REDUCING HIS TRUMP HOLDINGS TO THE SAME NUMBER AS SOUTH HELD.

FACTS ABOUT BOYS OF COMMUNITY SOUGHT IN SCOUT QUESTIONNAIRE

SCHOOL LEADERS GIVE BLANKS TO 1,450 YOUTHS

Basis to be Provided For Extension of Program of Area Council

OTHER COUNTIES ACTIVE

Many Questions Included in Fact Census

Over 1,000 questionnaires, to be filled out by boys between the ages of 11 and 18, are being distributed by Superintendent of County Schools George D. McDowell to county schools, and 450 to city schools by Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, for the purpose of conducting a boy-fact survey. The project is being sponsored by the Central Ohio Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, in cooperation with local school officials.

The boy-fact survey will furnish a basis for the extension of the Boy Scout movement in Pickaway county and provide teachers, ministers, parents and others interested in the youth of the community with valuable information about boys.

To Provide Facts

It will supply facts about what boys read, do in their leisure time, and to what churches, organizations, and clubs they belong. The results of the survey will show not only how many boys want to become scouts, but will also give an indication of what parents think of Scouting, what institutions might become sponsors of Boy Scout troops, and to how many or how few other organizations boys belong. Boys are asked to name men whom they think will make good leaders of boys' groups and why they think so. This will furnish a basis for recruiting new men into the game of scouting and serving boyhood.

In addition to aiding in the growth of the scout movement, the survey will supply statistics concerning the activities, reading habits, religion, and likes and dislikes, of hundreds of boys. When the project is completed ministers, teachers and interested persons may obtain all data. The compilation of the results will take considerable time.

Other Counties Acting

Other cooperating counties of the Central Ohio Area Council are also making the survey. Over 1,500 questionnaires were distributed in Fairfield county by R. M. Eymann, county superintendent of schools, and approximately 900 in Hocking county by J. W. Coleman, county superintendent.

The questionnaire used in making the boy-fact survey was prepared by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, and has been used extensively over the United States.

The boy-fact survey is the first step to be made in the effort to effect the re-establishment of effective scouting in Pickaway county since the reorganization meeting of the District Committee, held recently, at which time James I. Smith was elected chairman for the ensuing year. The survey is a responsibility of the organization committee of the district, of which McDowell is chairman.

Friendship of King Edward and Mrs. Simpson Brings Dangerous Dispute

land coronation service is being held up because the archbishop has withheld his approval of it.

Another reliable source said that the recent precipitate return to this country of Lord Beaverbrook, head of the Beaverbrook newspaper chain, was due to the constitutional crisis.

Beaverbrook arrived at New York and sailed right back.

A drama, intensely absorbing, which intimately concerned the happiness and lives of two human beings, was being unfolded behind a screen of ponderous words about the constitution.

No word of Mrs. Simpson, no word that what the king wanted was freedom in his own life, in his own hours of freedom, to continue his friendship for a cultured, popular American woman.

It was possible to picture the young king today, at his work at Buckingham palace, reading state papers, signing state documents, looking out into the palace gardens and thinking what the accident of birth had brought him — riches, world renown, and the smothering walls of an intangible moral prison.

Mrs. Simpson was in seclusion at her home in Cumberland Terrace.

SANTA BOOKED FOR VISIT TO UPTOWN TODAY

Nature decorated Circleville in a robe of white Wednesday for the arrival of Santa Claus.

Saint Nick with a pony team and sleigh were to arrive at Memorial hall at 4 p. m. and lead a parade through the downtown district. Both Circleville school bands were to participate. Candy was to be distributed to children by Santa from the courthouse steps immediately after the parade. Merchants have provided 2,500 boxes of candy for the distribution. Forty story-book characters were to march in the pageant.

PENSION SLASH EFFECTIVE IN OHIO IN MONTH

COLUMBUS, Dec. 2.—(UP)—Old-age pensions will be reduced about two dollars a month, from $25 to $23, in January, Henry J. Berrold, chief of the pension division, announced today.

Pensions had been raised from an average of $15.10 in September, due chiefly to financial aid from the government.

land coronation service is being held up because the archbishop has withheld his approval of it.

Another reliable source said that the recent precipitate return to this country of Lord Beaverbrook, head of the Beaverbrook newspaper chain, was due to the constitutional crisis.

Beaverbrook arrived at New York and sailed right back.

A drama, intensely absorbing, which intimately concerned the happiness and lives of two human beings, was being unfolded behind a screen of ponderous words about the constitution.

No word of Mrs. Simpson, no word that what the king wanted was freedom in his own life, in his own hours of freedom, to continue his friendship for a cultured, popular American woman.

It was possible to picture the young king today, at his work at Buckingham palace, reading state papers, signing state documents, looking out into the palace gardens and thinking what the accident of birth had brought him — riches, world renown, and the smothering walls of an intangible moral prison.

Mrs. Simpson was in seclusion at her home in Cumberland Terrace.
